

SOCIETY'S OUTCASTS.

THE FLORENCE NIGHT MISSION'S EFFORTS TO SAVE THEM.

Gratifying Results of the Good Work in the East—Good Field for Missionary Work Here.

The Florence Night Mission, recently inaugurated on Third street in this city by Mr. Charles N. Crittenton of New York, has commenced its good work under the most favorable auspices. The mission is crowded nightly by all classes of people, and many kind-hearted and Christian men and women, aided and encouraged by the clergymen of the city, are doing their utmost to make its work effective.

Mr. Crittenton is to be congratulated on the excellent beginning that has been made in the commendable work inaugurated by him in this city. He was the founder of the Florence Night Mission in New York, New Brunswick, N. J., and San Jose, in this State, which are doing much toward the redemption of the fallen. They are young girls just taking the first step that leads to misery. Some such organization as this is needed to reach out a helping hand to the unfortunate outcasts of society who have not the heart to face the scorn and sneers of those who can see no pollution for downfallen women.

Every community has its quota of this class, and this city is by no means an exception. There are many who are in this mission work to be done here in this direction, and the good people of the city should encourage it. They should not let themselves feel like taking an active part. There are hundreds, if not thousands, of fallen fathers and mothers here who would that their sons or daughters should not fall from grace in a strange land, and whose faith and mother should not forget the precepts of the Golden Rule.

Mr. Crittenton is in constant receipt of reminders, from those who have been rescued through the Florence Mission, of their appreciation of what these homes have done for them. Yesterday he received from one of the New York converts the following lines, signed "Miriam," showing what the hand of friendship and charity has done for an unfortunate girl:

"NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP,
Golden sleep so lowly bending,
Little feet and hands so white,
Gently half asleep, half wakened,
Laying out my weary body,
Well she knows when she is saying—
"Now I lay me down to sleep—
"To God that the day is over,
Praying Him her soul to keep.
Half asleep and murmuring faintly,
I'll be asleep before I wake—
"Tingling fingers creep so softly,
"I pray the Lord my soul to keep."
On the rupture sweat, unbroken,
Of the soul who wrote that strain,
Children's prayers were floating
Up to Heaven from the floor.
If of all that has been written,
I could choose what might be mine,
It should be that child's prayer,
Rising to the throne divine,
New York, Christmas, 1890.

"MIRIAM."

The author of these lines, Mr. Crittenton states, was rescued from a life of shame in 1878. Since then she has been married to a young man who was also saved through the medium of the Florence Mission, and now living happy and contented lives in their own home.

Such work as this deserves the encouragement of those the thresholds of whose homes have never been, and probably never will be, invaded by sin and misery. That mission work, which is the entrance to the saloon, is paring the way for the downfall of many young girls who do not realize that the saloon is a place to themselves, will not realize it until the habit of tipping becomes firmly fastened upon them. If this habit is not to be checked or totally eradicated, the young girls of the Florence Mission and the churches will someday find themselves confronted with a social problem of such magnitude that they will be unable to cope with it. The time to meet such an enemy is before it becomes invincible, and the "heavy hand of the law" cannot always be relied upon for effective relief. Long inactivity is apt to cause partial paralysis of the mind, and the most prominent cause of this is the fact that the faithful workers every night. In the six nights that the mission has been opened they have met with a large number of converts. Twenty-seven persons in all have been converted. Last night there were five conversions, some of them persons who had lived very wicked lives.

To-night will be the last night that Mr. Crittenton and Mr. Carpenter will add to the mission, as they go to Woodland tomorrow to open meetings there. But the mission meetings will continue to be held every night, and will be assisted by Mr. Marshall, assisted by the local ministers and others.

GLACKEN AND FISHER.

Justice Devine Declines to Hold Them for Trial for Murder.

District Attorney Brainerd made his argument for the prosecution yesterday morning in the examination case of John J. Glacken and Charles Fisher, charged with the murder of Antonie Menke, Jr., in September last. The case having been submitted, Justice Devine said:

"The Court and the counsel in this case are to be congratulated on the fact that the drawn-out examination has come to an ending. The counsel in this case have done very well. The examination, the prosecution, particularly the Deputy District Attorney, Brainerd, who had more particularly the charge of the case than his superior officer, is entitled, I think, to commendation for the marked degree of ability and the earnestness with which he has conducted the examination of this case. The attorney for the defense conducted the side of the case very ably, and at all times while I have sat in the examination of cases as a committing magistrate I have uniformly held to the view that was to withdraw from the province and consideration of a jury the question of the guilt of a defendant, and that the committing magistrate was somewhat or in any way in doubt as to what was the result of the jury on the facts given. In all cases where I am determined that doubt I have uniformly held the decision is against the defendant."

The code of this State holds that the committing magistrate must hold a preliminary hearing before him, however. First, that a crime has been committed, and that there is such cause to believe that the defendant committed that crime.

Now, while, as I said before, I have always had a disinclination to withdraw from the jury the question of guilt, and I do not understand such and such a state of facts the defendant might be guilty where I myself was in doubt, still, as the law is, I am bound to do so to the conclusion that it was the duty of the committing magistrate to discharge the defendant provided he came to the conclusion from the testimony that the defendant was not committed, and that there was not sufficient cause to believe the defendant or the defendant guilty. The law is very clear on this point. The examination conducted on the 10th of December, nearly two weeks ago, is not sufficient for me to say that there was not sufficient cause to believe the defendant guilty, and I have eliminated all that testimony from consideration in coming to a conclusion in this case.

Defendant Fisher was not in Court. Defendant Glacken was, however, and his friends present congratulated him on the result of the examination.

FLEECE IN A DIVE.

How Charles Cummings Got Away with Wittke's Money.

Charles Cummings, charged with petit larceny, was acquitted yesterday by Judge Buckley. The prosecuting witness was a young man named Wittke. On taking the witness stand he stated that he did not know anybody by the name of Cummings. He was best out of his money in a strange way. He walked into Smith's dive on K street and stood for a moment watching Cummings and a partner playing a game of pool. The latter was confident that his hand was good and put up all the chips he had, which represented more than Cummings' pile contained.

Cummings turned around and borrowed $8 from Wittke, saying that he would pay him back, even if he lost, but he was sure he would.

The money was staked, Cummings lost, and the gambler was told to rattle for his money.

The defendant said he made a very different proposition to Wittke. The latter saw that he (Cummings) had two aces, and that the other player only had one, and he reasoned that it would be almost impossible for the latter to draw another "one" card. He then proposed to Cummings that the winnings would be divided, and was just going to reach for the stake when "partner" turned up a big ace of spades.

THEY MUST BUILD.

The Supreme Court Makes a Mandatory Order to School Trustees.

A decision in the case of Jackson Eby (respondent) vs. The Board of School Trustees of Red Bank District, Tehama county, was filed yesterday in the Supreme Court clerk's office in this city.

This was a proceeding for a writ of mandamus to the trustees of the school district, commanding them to proceed with the erection and construction of a school building upon a certain lot within said school district, which the district is alleged to be the owner, and to complete the same within a reasonable time.

The Supreme Court affirms the judgment of the lower court, which found for the plaintiffs on the material issues, and awarded a preliminary mandate, which, after reciting the facts, commanded that the writ proceed with the erection of the school-house, and to use the fund deposited in the Treasury of Tehama county.

CALIFORNIA DATE.

One of the Valuable Productions of the Capay Valley Section.

The Marysville Appeal has received from William Wolskiel, of Yolo county, a box containing several dozen ripe dates, of large size and fine flavor. The dates were grown on a date palm on the premises of J. H. Wolskiel, not far from Winters. The tree is 26 years old and of large size.

No finer dates than these were ever imported. They are very rich and sweet, and furnish striking evidence of the mildness of the climate of this valley.

CHRISTMAS AT THE RED HOUSE.

This popular trading center presents an attractive appearance at the present time.

Glimes, who is to make a special effort to please during the holidays, in the selection and variety of his goods and in his prices. Long experience has taught him to keep on hand to suit his patrons. The consequence is that his clerks are kept on the jump from early morning till closing time, and they will earn the rest that Christmas and New Year's will give them.

Police Court.

John Williams, the man who stole an overcoat from a downtown clothing store, was sentenced to thirty days imprisonment yesterday by Judge Buckley. John Williams was ordered to keep on hand to suit his patrons. The consequence is that his clerks are kept on the jump from early morning till closing time, and they will earn the rest that Christmas and New Year's will give them.

New Incorporation.

Articles of Incorporation of the Black Eagle Mining and Milling Company Filed in the Secretary of State's Office Yesterday.

The principal place of business is San Diego, and the principal office is in the city of San Francisco. The directors are W. P. Eisenmayer, James Huntington, W. S. Hinkle, C. C. Zinn and J. H. Weisman.

Died of his Injuries.

The injury inflicted by Ciraco Brascoli on his throat on Sunday last, while in a dependent mood, terminated fatally yesterday. Deceased was a member of the Italian Benevolent Society, the Druids and the Red Men.

Fresno Oranges.

Two carloads of oranges from Fresno, California, passed through this city yesterday, on their way to Portland, Oregon.

For Christmas.

There is nothing nicer than an Anzora rug for a Christmas gift. A choice line of Anzora and other rugs, tapestries, hassocks and carpet squares, just received at Locke &amp; Lavenson's 318 J street.

Special Announcement.

The "Pacific," 725 to 729 J street, have some doubt as to the fate of Truckee's Noted Canine.

Some Doubt as to the Fate of Truckee's Noted Canine.

There seems to be a belief in Truckee that Dorr, the valuable Gordon setter belonging to Fred A. Taft, did not perish in the recent fire in that town, as was at one time supposed. Mr. Spaulding, the gentleman in whose charge the dog had been left, informed the local press that there is reason to suppose the animal was spirited away.

Burned or Stolen.

Mr. Spaulding says that on the night of the fire the dog was taken to the back room of the bank to the piazza, and was ordered home, but whether he returned was not known, or was carried away by some one still remains a mystery, as he has not been seen or heard from since that night.

The Footless Chinaman.

Ah Sung's Greatest Misery Is the Fear He May Not Die.

Ah Sung, the Chinaman whose feet were amputated Wednesday at Redwood Hospital, was getting along fairly last night, and City Physician Nichols said the wounds were in the best possible condition. The patient suffers little physical pain, but is completely disheartened, and wants to die. The more prospect that he may get well, the more he fears.

SPECIMEN INNOCENTS.

FAT JACK KILEY AND DR. C. H. JOSELYN SOON TO GO FREE.

Governor Waterman Commutes the Sentences of These Convicts—Also That of a Sonoma Inmate.

Governor Waterman granted three commutations of sentences yesterday to convicts in the State Prison.

The first was to James Kiley, alias "Fat Jack," whose sentence was commuted from fifty years to fifteen years. Kiley was convicted of rape in San Francisco in October, 1883. The Governor says:

"In granting this commutation, I do so as an incentive for good conduct and a recognition of the fact that the crime does not blunt the sensibilities entirely, but leaves sufficient manhood in the breast of one that is undergoing punishment to prompt him to acts of courage and beneficial effort. At a moment of great danger to himself, he bravely stepped in between the Warden of the prison, John McLaughlin, and a desperate weapon of a desperate convict, who was determined to encompass the death of the Warden, if possible, and saved that officer's life, at the imminent peril of his own. Since that time he has remained in confinement undergoing his sentence, but it always seemed to me that some return should be made him for his action as above set forth, and therefore it is that I grant him this commutation; and for the additional reason that his former employer, who are known as such, but they are not the business men in the State, will again receive him and give him steady employment."

HAS INFANTILE FRIENDS.

Charles H. Joselyn, convicted in October, 1883, of rape in San Francisco, and sentenced to forty years in the State Prison, had his sentence commuted to twelve years. The Governor explains his action thus:

"I have carefully examined the papers in this case, and from what is therein contained, I am satisfied that there is a reasonable doubt as to Joselyn's complicity in the act for which he is being punished. He is a young man, has served over seven years of imprisonment, has been an excellent and useful prisoner, and has influential friends among our best citizens, who stand ready to take him by the hand and leave him to the place of confinement, and assist him to become a useful member of society."

A SONOMA ROBBER.

The sentence of Floyd B. Cole, convicted of robbery in Sonoma county in August, 1886, and sentenced to ten years imprisonment, was commuted to seven years, for the following reasons:

"Cole was but twenty years of age when he committed this offense, and from the records of respectable citizens, it appears he was led into the affair by an ex-convict, and that he was not a habitual offender. Both offenders were arrested at the same time, and when brought forth for trial pleaded guilty and received the same sentence. It is manifestly unjust, as Cole was young and this was his first offense, and in my opinion a lighter sentence will subserve the ends of justice."

THE WEATHER.

Signal Officer Barwick Tells of It Here and Elsewhere.

The Signal Service reports at 5 o'clock last evening show a steadily falling barometer, light southerly winds and rain being precipitated. The barometrical readings at 5 A. M. and 5 P. M. yesterday were 30.08 and 30.06 inches, which indicates a steadily falling barometer.

The temperature at 5 A. M. and 5 P. M. was 40° and 42°, while the highest and lowest were 48° and 40°.

The highest and lowest temperature one year ago yesterday was 52° and 41°, with 48 of an inch of rain.

The precipitation yesterday up to 5 P. M. was 1.4 of an inch, with rain still falling. The barometer at 5 o'clock last evening was quite low in Washington and Oregon, and in fact the low barometer extended along the coast as far south as Eureka, where that instrument read 29.94 inches, as against 30.06 inches at San Francisco and Sacramento.

During the twelve hours ending at 5 o'clock last evening there was a steady rain, with the following rainfall: Olympia 12 of an inch, Walla Walla 8.2, Spokane Falls .02, Portland 28, Eureka .74, Red Bluff and Sacramento 1.4 of an inch.

The direction of the wind and state of the weather at 5 o'clock yesterday was as follows for the places named: Portland, south and cloudy; Walla Walla, southwest and cloudy; Spokane Falls, northeast and cloudy; Eureka, south and cloudy; Red Bluff, north and raining; and Sacramento, east and raining.

HARD TO CLIMB.

A Crosswalk Incline Causes a Painful Accident Last Evening.

The smooth plank incline that connects the cross-walks of our streets with the sidewalks have long been a source of trouble to the pedestrians, and it is not the adaptation of strangers visiting this city. Since the time some incompetent introduced them, hundreds of persons have had their pride, as well as their breath knocked out of them by coming into contact with the gutter, and many a life has been mourned the loss of, and many a limb has been mangled by being compelled to sit down suddenly and unceremoniously on the muddy plank.

About the only sure protection against accident in rainy weather, when these inclines are as smooth as the sidewalks, is to wear spiked shoes. Thus equipped, the ascent can be made with tolerable ease. Why this system has been handed down from one generation to another, and maintained in all its primitive glory, is one of those things that no fellow citizen can explain.

The latest recorded victim of the plank incline is Joseph Smith, a young lad who came to this part of the city in search of employment in the employ of Mrs. Langtry. He made a rash attempt last evening to climb one of the plank inclines, and as he came up, he fell, and his feet went under him and he went down—down harder than McIntyre descended into the coal-hole. He struck his shoulder on the edge of the foot-board that spanned the gutter and broke his shoulder, of course.

A friend assisted him to the Receiving Hospital, where the City Physician soon arrived and reset the fractured bone, which was mangled off at the junction of the arm with the top of the shoulder.

The injury, though painful, will not prove serious. The young man is to go to work to-day at the Rancho del Paso, but this accident will lay him up for a while.
